

CONSERVES ALL ANIMALS KILLED

Arizona Railroad Aids the Government by Saving Dead Animals and Ties.

Globe, Ariz., Nov. 28.—Railroad efforts to cooperate with the government in food conservation, insofar as animals killed on the right of way are concerned, were announced on behalf of the Arizona Eastern last night by superintendent J. W. Williams.

Hereafter, when a dead animal is killed by a train, the engineer of the latter will be required to notify the nearest station and a man will be dispatched to skin the animal, save the hide and save as much meat as possible. This is then to be disposed of to butchers along the line or at cost price to the poor. Other animals killed, such as horses, will be skinned and the pelts forwarded to a central agency point. The railroad has also instructed that all old ties on the Globe division be forwarded here where they will be cut up and sold to the nearest hauling cost.

Twenty-five carloads of old ties were sold to feed dealers last winter. Doubtless that number will go to the needy this winter, he said.

DISBEE IS SHAKEN BY BIG BLASTS TO UNCOVER COPPER

Bisbee, Ariz., Nov. 28.—Ten powerful locomotives now are operating on Sacramento Hill, a short distance below the business section of Bisbee, hauling away material dislodged by blasting. Steam shovels are cutting away the eminence, just above the Southwestern railroad and the county road, in readiness for the mining of an enormous body of copper sulphide, for which a mill soon will be built at a point below Warren. The blasting is heavy and continuous and the jarring is doing some damage to property in the near vicinity.

THE Daily Novelette

MOCK TURTLE.

MRS. BIFFINGTON was on the "Husbands' Wives Liberty Bond" committee, each member of which was just crazy to sell the most bonds, so of course when Biffington arrived home with the two theater tickets, she was out selling bonds to the neighbors. Biffington sent for a messenger boy to look for her, and returned prepared his own supper. The messenger boy returned with Mrs. Biffington shortly after 3 o'clock, and Biffington told her about the tickets.

"Oh, Biff! How perfectly lovely!" she cried. "I've just been longing to see 'The Kidnapped Grandmother.' Did you get yourself a nice supper? I sold $50 worth of bonds just in my own block!"

There was not much time to spare, so they started immediately. As they were about to step off the trolley, Mrs. Biffington tried to sell a bond to the trolleyman, and by the time Biffington got her off they were 15 blocks past the theater. He called a taxi and got in. Ten minutes later he looked out to see what was keeping Mrs. Biffington. She was trying to sell a bond to the chauffeur.

At the theater, she laid a detaining hand on her husband as he was about to give up the tickets.

"Oh, wait a moment, Biff!" she said. "I must try to sell a bond to this doorman!"

Biffington watched her try for 20 minutes. Then, pinning her ticket on her sleeve, he went inside in time for the last ten minutes of the last act.

A Pretty Baby.

WHO doesn't want her baby to be the prettiest in town? Contrary to popular opinion, most mothers do not think their babies are the prettiest, but they admit the fact. Once I was judge at a pretty baby contest and had to award the prizes—and I'll never do it again. I made an enemy of all but the five prize winners, and after the excitement was over, I overheard one mother confess to another: "Well, I don't think Marjorie is as pretty as those that got prizes, but I wasn't going to let her know it." Marjorie, I remember, had wept all through the contest.

Pretty babies are priceless babies. No matter how much potential beauty a child is born with, it will have little chance of developing it unless its nerves are kept in good order and its body in sound condition. The less a baby is handled, the better for the baby and the easier for the mother. So both baby and mother gain in health and looks.

A baby needs plenty of sleep in quiet surroundings, preferably in the open air. And health means present and future beauty to the child. It needs its daily bath, to keep the skin fresh and give it a good start towards the perfect complexion that everyone desires. It needs proper food, so the digestion is always in good condition. It should never be fretted or teased, or handled and disturbed, such things make it nervous, ill tempered—and such things react against the baby's looks.

Never wash a baby's face by pulling the features, or the skin—this makes the baby's face red and sore. Never hold a handkerchief to a baby's nose, and tell it to "blow hard." This makes the nose large and ugly. Never let a baby suck its fingers, or a pacifier—protruding teeth and a sloping chin come from this.

a week, shampoo once in three weeks.

Edith B.—Use any sort of plain paper to write to a boy at the front—I think he'll be glad to get the letters and won't care much what they are written on. Don't use medicines to reduce diet. You needn't cut down so much on the quantity you eat, but you must cut out fattening things, pork, potatoes, sugar, white bread, butter, cream, pastry. Keep on with the eyebrow treatment. It takes time, you know, to see results. The nose is red and shiny as the result of poor digestion or a slight congestion in the blood vessels supplying the nose. Massage with the finger tips will relieve this, a diet will overcome indigestion.

Today's Daintiest Dish

By CONSTANCE CLARKE.

American Apple Pie With Crumbly Crust.

SIFT two cups of flour with half a teaspoonful of salt into a mixing bowl; add two tablespoonfuls of lard, icy cold, and chop until fine and dry like meal; add slowly a half cupful of ice water, mixing and cutting the dough with a knife. Turn onto a pastry board, lightly sprinkle with flour and roll out with a quick, light stroke; dot with pieces of icy cold butter, fold over and roll again. Do this three times, using a half cupful of butter in all, then fold and roll without the butter. Line a deep pie tin with the paste, fill it with sliced tart apples. Sprinkle over brown sugar, some finely shredded lemon peel, two tablespoonfuls of currant jelly and small pieces of butter rolled in flour. Cover the top with crust and bake a light brown.—Tomorrow, Ten Cakes.

Till prolongation of the Russo-Japanese negotiations at Tokyo, which have been delayed by vicerey Alexieff's return to St. Petersburg, is due to inability to reach an understanding regarding Korea. ### WAITED MANY MONTHS SO SHE WOULD BE SURE

Now comes forward and testifies in favor of Tanlac—Gains 15 pounds.

"I have been free from my troubles for several months and have been waiting to see if my relief was permanent before making a statement. I am now ready to tell the people what wonderful things Tanlac has done for me," said Mrs. Amanda M. Uda de Garcia, of Juarez, Mexico, while in Kelly & Pollard company's drug store at El Paso, recently.

"For seven months," continued Mrs. Garcia, "I was afflicted with rheumatism which kept me almost helpless all this time. Being the mother of five children I had many duties but it was simply impossible for me to perform them. I had pains all over my body and my arms and legs were swollen to twice their normal size. I became so nervous and full of suffering that it was impossible for me to get a night's rest. I had all sorts of food and what nourishment I did take caused gas, bloating and misery."

"A friend who had been helping me do my work advised me to try Tanlac and I will always be thankful to her, for I have gained fifteen pounds and my health is even better than it ever was. It took seven bottles of Tanlac to pull me out, but ever since I got through with them I have been free from the rheumatism and have been able to eat heartily every meal and sleep good every night. I don't have any more of those tired, worried feelings and I am doing all my work, and could do a lot more if necessary."

All my friends know about the wonderful results of Tanlac in my case and I want others, especially those who are suffering, to know, too."

Tanlac is sold in El Paso by Kelly & Pollard Company, Inc., and People's Drug Store, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative.—Adv.

The White House Way To Help the Red Cross Carry Your Small Packages

FOR several months there has been an agitation all over America to "carry small packages" without a just reason and without just compensation to the purchaser. THE WHITE HOUSE has made an earnest endeavor to formulate a plan to make it possible for Christmas Shoppers to "carry small packages" and thereby receive a suitable reward. Fortunately a happy suggestion was made to the Management by MRS. Z. T. WHITE that on every package which was carried by the purchaser THE WHITE HOUSE should place TWO RED CROSS STAMPS, thereby helping the RED CROSS. THE WHITE HOUSE immediately accepted this suggestion and throughout the Holiday Season will place RED CROSS STAMPS on all Packages carried by CHRISTMAS SHOPPERS. And so we urge all to

Carry Your Small Packages And Help The Red Cross

We take this opportunity to publicly thank MRS. Z. T. WHITE for her excellent suggestion as it will mean that Thousands of Shoppers will gladly CARRY THEIR SMALL PACKAGES when they know that to do so will HELP THE RED CROSS. Never has a plan been suggested that has had such real merit and it no doubt will be taken up by retail establishments in every city of the land. If such is the case Millions of Dollars will be added to the RED CROSS FUND during the Holiday season. Beginning Friday Morning all packages carried by shoppers will have TWO RED CROSS STAMPS placed thereon at our expense. We earnestly urge our patrons and the public in general to carry their small packages purchased at THE WHITE HOUSE and thereby assist THE RED CROSS.
